

OVERVIEW

Teacher Workforce Profile in South Carolina for 2021-2022

AUGUST 2023

An annual review of South Carolina's teacher workforce provides insight on data trends across a variety of factors. Utilizing statewide educational data from the 2021-2022 academic year, this report draws comparisons between South Carolina's teacher workforce and nationwide figures. Closer to home, this report provides a longitudinal view of state trends by comparing 2021-2022 teacher workforce characteristics with results from the 2020-2021 SC TEACHER workforce profile report.

+ EXPERIENCE, CERTIFICATIONS, AND DEGREES

The average years of teaching experience decreased by nearly one year. The percentage of teachers who possess alternative (+0.5%) and international (+0.7%) certifications both increased over the course of one year, and the percentage of teachers with National Board Certification (-0.4%) decreased in the same period.

While the SC teacher workforce mirrors teachers in the United States in many ways, two key differences stand out. Black teachers comprise a larger percentage of SC teachers (15%) than nationwide (6%). More than 6 in 10 teachers (63%) in SC schools in the 2021-2022 school year had at least a postbaccalaureate degree.

+ COMMUNITY TYPE AND POVERTY LEVELS

Nearly 3 out of 4 teachers (72%) work in schools located in rural or suburban communities. The smaller number of teachers in high-poverty schools compared to low-poverty schools suggests that high-poverty schools tend to have smaller student populations with fewer teachers.

+ KEY FINDINGS

#1 SLO SCORES

From 2020-21 to 2021-22, teachers scoring Exemplary on student learning objectives (SLOs) increased across all poverty levels. However, the percentage of teachers in low-poverty schools scoring Exemplary was twice that found in high-poverty schools.
